Rules for Using The Font

Use sans-serif consistently

Use the primary brand typeface for all headings, subheadings, and body text to maintain visual consistency across platforms.

Maintain proper hierarchy

Bold weights are reserved for headlines and key messaging. Regular and medium weights work for body copy and supporting text.

Never distort typography

Respect the original proportions of the typeface. Scaling should always be proportional to preserve readability and brand integrity.

Ensure sufficient contrast

Text must be legible against all background colors. Use dark text on light backgrounds and vice versa, following WCAG guidelines.

Limit decorative elements

Keep the primary communication clean and professional. Decorative elements should enhance, not distract from the message.

Align with grid system

All typography should follow the established grid structure to create visual harmony and professional polish across all brand materials.
